

Morris-Jumel Mansion, Roger Morris Park Harlem Heights, NY

Size
NA

Cost
1,000,000

Major Programmatic Elements
Complete exterior restoration of the house. Included new roof with appropriate wood shingles. Restoration of the wooden structure with wood that match the same species. Replaced and restored old broken windows. With its new coat of paint the house has the same appearance as when it first was built in 1765

Nature of Firm's Responsibilities
Architectural Design
Contract Documents

Owner
New York City Parks Department

Date of Completion
1994

Restored portico and pediment, supported by grand Tuscan columns

Morris Jumel Mansion

Morris Jumel Mansion

Manhattan's oldest surviving house, built about 1765 as a summer retreat. The mansion is located on a parcel known as "Mount Morris" from which the , Harlem River, the Bronx, Long Island Sound, New York City Hudson River and the Jersey Palisades are visible

The Morris-Jumel Mansion is a monument to colonial grandeur. Our firm worked on an extensive exterior restoration , completed in 1994, the mansion was returned to its former splendor.